Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.
BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE,
Fairfax Court-House, Va.

From the Eastport Centinel of April 10.

LATEST FROM SOUTH-AMERICA.

By the Leeod, Woodard, arrived at this port, yesterday, from Trinidad, we received from a very intelligent gentleman, at that place, and who very recently returned from the theatre of war, the following

BRIEF ABSTRACT OF THE LATEST INTELLIGENCE FROM VENEZUELA.

Port-Spain, March 15, 1819.

Late dispatches received at Angostura, rom Gen. Paez, dated the 15th ult. announced the retreat of the Spanish army over the Arauca. Morillo, after an ineffectual attempt to Paez to a general action, was rapidly retracing his steps towards the Apune. His object is to regain the cultivated country, finding it impossible to draw supplies from the plains, in which he was harrassed continually by 2500 cavalry.—The detachments he had sent out in quest of subsistence had been uniformly cut off by Paez's cavalry, and from the time of crossing the Arauca till that of his re-crossing it, and marching as far as Conception, Morillo had lost 1400 men, and a field piece. He had circulated (in writing) a boastful proclamation to Vaneros, or Inhabitants of the plains, dated the 5th, to which Paez had replied by a keenly satirical address (by way of comment) on the 15th February.

The artillery and infantry, (2000) left on the Island before Urbana, in the Orinoco, were proceeding by forced marches to re-unite themselves with Paez. They will be reinforced by 420 English and Irish soldiers, it having been Bolivar's intention to await there the arrival of 2000 English daily expected, &c. General Bolivar set out from Angostura on the 27th ult. on his return to the army.

Col. Hursler's regiment and the remainder of Col. English's expedition are looked for daily. They will probably be associated with the 600 landed at Margarita, whither Generals Urdometa, and Valdez, Col. Needham (the adjutant general of that division) have gone with about 60 English sailors, who will assist in manning gunboats, or other vessels. Associated with 500 Margaritanians, &c. they will make a decent upon the coast at ———, and form a junction with the division collected in the provinces of Barcelona and Cumana, to be commanded by Gen. Marinos--Sarazas', Monagas', and perhaps Bermendez' forces will constitute this army. Monagas was at the point of death from at attack of fever. News of decisive operations may be looked for from day to day. Should these forces not complete the object of independence, though the supposition is improbable, the troops to arrive from England will unquestionably expel the remnant of Morillo's corps from Venezuela. This will be a work of the greater facility, as Morillo has suffered greatly. Paez writes that the prisoners taken were more like skeletons than living men. Add to this, he, Morillo, has above 400 miles of plains to traverse, exposed continually to the enemy's calvalry, his own being annihilated, and not an head of cattle in his camp.

The Congress was deliberating on various regulations, and on a fundamental law, or constitution, to be proposed to the people for their approbation. This is the substance of the latest news. More important events will soon challenge more regard than this hasty epitome.

We also received by the above vessel, Trinidad papers to the 13th ult. but they contain nothing of importance.

From French papers received at the office of Relf's Philadelphia Gazette,

TRANSLATED

From the Paris Commercial Pilot, March 4.

1st.—OF THE MONOPOLY OF TOBACCO.

The monopoly is to be considered as the greatest evil of the political bodies.

Friends of justice and of liberty, we shall freely discuss the question, and in explaining the evil, we will try to find a remedy.

Are the ministers of a constituted monarchy to be manufacturers and dealers in wholesale and retail?

Are not the citizens at liberty to work and to show their land as they think proper, because the amount of monopoly could not be fairly replaced by a tax, incompitable with our liberty and our rights?

In the constitutional monarchies, the high situation of the privileged head, his political infallibility, and his full power to do good, seems to exclude even the suspicion of that spirit of avidity inherent to all kinds of speculation.

The ministers ought never to be manufacturers, to be dealers, or discounters, or do any speculations whatever, because by instituting a rivalship of commercial interests, they lessen the consideration due to the sovereign, and at the same time, they incroach upon our rights and our liberty.

The duties of the ministers under the representative government, are to watch the social act, to keep the wants of the government apace with its resources, and to employ their strength, justice and honor, to make the nation happy and respected at home and abroad.

The duties of the people are to respect the laws, to cultivate and to contribute, according to their income, towards the just expenses of the government, and the magnificence of the crown.

Should the ministers abandon themselves to commercial speculations, the attention they would give to their own interest, being otherwise employed, would do away any suspicions of their integrity.

And as there are no men, whose commercial means could go in contact with the resources of the government, emulation must cease, the concurrence is destroyed, the profits lessen, the value of the goods rise above its standard, the agio makes a common cause with usury, the weight of the public taxes becomes intolerable, and the politic body sinks by extremes, or by the state of inactivity, the only fruit of the above evil.

From our demonstration that the nature of a representative government is entirely contradictory with the ministers embarking themselves in any commercial speculations, the question arises, of what name could be given to a law by which a citizen should be hindred from working or sowing his field at his own will, and if then the same citizen ought not to be considered as a slave? but the advocates for the monopoly object; it is not enough for you to criticise, you ought to find the means to supply the products of 40 millions neat, and of 72 millions in toto.

Well, let us seek for that remedy, and what would be our situation if, under the charter of our rights and of our liberty to supply the public expenses, we were obliged to admit the monopoly, as the only remedy? May we be far from such humiliation.

So, since by necessity, we are forced to find a remedy to clear ourselves of the monopoly, we will submit one arising from the thing itself.

Let us gain full liberty to the culture of tobacco, with that restriction nevertheless, that once collected, each owner at a given time,* shall be obliged to deposit for his own private account, his produce in stores provided for that purpose—and that in case of any sale being closed, the buyer will have so much to pay upon the amounts, in proportion with the annual consumption generally known by the ministers.

Let it be a law that all the tobacco to be found out of the public stores, after the stated time, or in some manufactory, shall be liable to seizure and sold at public sale, and the amount to be equally divided between the officers of the government to that effect, and the planters who shall have complied with the law of the storage.

As for the imported tobaccos, let us at its arrival, store them in the custom house, ware houses, and when sold, let the buyers pay so much per custom upon the amount, according to the annual consumption of the article, when known by the ministers.

Every manufacturer, who, to evade the duty, should have bought any tobacco out of the public stores, ought to be suppressed, and subject to a penalty, to be divided equally between the officers to that effect and the planters, who shall have complied with the law.

According to these dispositions, it would be impossible for the government not to receive annually as much benefit as the actual one, because then it will be at liberty to raise the duty at forty millions, according to the knowledge it should have of the actual consumption of this domestic and imported leaf.

If there is a too great difference between the value of the imported tobacco with our own, the poor will be relieved, and the rich will have to pay the duty according to his own wants.

Our view in the foregoing observation is only to pay the tribute which every lover of his country is bound to do.

* It is generally known how to value the loss arising in tobacco from its collection to the time, wherein it is to be deposited — Consequently, if the planter should deposit 50 lb. instead of 100 lb. he actually pays immediately the duty of the wanting 50 pounds.

From the N. York Com. Adv. of April 24.

LATE FROM ENGLAND.

London, March 12.

The imports of bullion lately from the continent are not extensive; within a week nine casks of specie from Holland, and two from Ostend, have been reported at the custom house; a great proportion is said to be gold.

According to advices of the 30th of July from Batavia, the crop of tea in China was very moderate, and in some places had totally failed. There was a large stock of cotton in the warehouses of the Chinese merchants. Of opium there was not a sufficient supply on hand for one months consumption; that of Gatria sold at 1300 dollars per chest, and Malva at 800.

The fishemen near Manheim have found in the Rhine the jaws of a monstrous animal, the teeth of which were not less than eight inches long and four broad.

The Teritorial Committee, formed at Frankfort, of the Ministers of the Allied Powers, has dissolved itself; and the members are about to leave this city.

The Archduchess Maria Louiso set out the 14th ult. from Parma, with a numerous suite, to proceed by the way of Verono to Venice to meet her father, the Emperor of Austria.

The Persian Ambassador, now at Vienna, continues to view every thing worthy of inspection in that capital. He was lately at the theatre to which an immense crowd was attracted, in order to see him. It seems this assemblage of gazers became intolerable to his Excellency in one of the saloons, where, to the astonishment of the Austrians, he and his suite began to lay about them on all sides among those who surrounded him. The writer of the article sagely remarks, that it is very likely his excellency and suite were accustomed in their own country to have plenty of room made for them. It seems the physician attached to the embassy is also the Ambassador's chief cook, and it is his duty to ascertain the salubrity of the victuals served up at the table of his master. His excellency was to leave Vienna on the 20th ult.

Letters from Rome, of the 12th of Feb. state, that the enterprize formed to draw from the bed of the Tiber the statues and the other wrecks of antiquity, which it is supposed are deposited there, appears to obtain success. Already the sum of 60,000 scudi is almost completed. All the subjects which it is hoped will be drawn from the bed of the river, by means of a machine invented for the purpose, will be formed into one mass, and valued by connoisseurs. The Pope's Chamber will receive a sixth, and will also have the right of priority to purchase the rest.

London, March 15.

We are informed that the statement from Lloyd's, which appeared in our paper of Friday, respecting the claims of some English merchants upon the Court of St. Petersbug, for the value of certain vessels and cargoes, under neutral flags, which were detained by the Russian government in 1810, was not correct. The following has been communicated to us as an accurate account. The Emperor Alexander gave a gracious reception to the deputation to St. Petersburg; and his reply to the memorial which was presented by Lord Cathcart, was of a conciliatory character. It was shortly after this that his Imperial Majesty set out for Aix-la-Chapelle, whither a second Memorial was sent, called for by the observations of his Majesty upon the first.—With respect to this second Memorial, it was stated by Count Nesselrode, that his majesty being absent from his capital, and at a distance from his ministers and all the records and documents connected with the case, it was not considered expedient to lay it before the emperor. At the same time, the most positive assurance was given, that it should be submitted to his majesty immediately upon his return to St. Petersburg, where count Nesselrode himself did not arrive till last month. In this situation the matter stands at present. No report as to whether the Memorial had been presented could have reached this country yet. It may be observed, in conclusion, that the similar seizures made in Sweden at the same period, at the amount of above one million sterling, were all voluntarily restored in 1812, 1813, and before the termination of the war.

Died, at Goa, (India) Cayeton Count Steinach, of Donnerpagh, in Styria, a private in the British 84th regiment of Infantry. Losing his mother when young, his father, Charles Count Steinach, married a second wife, who proved so troublesome to the deceased that he quitted Hungary, and enlisted in one of the British German regiments, served in Egypt under Abercrombie, and in Italy under Count Maida; and when the regiment was ordered home, he was, at his own request, and to keep at a distance from his family, transfered to the 84th regt. which proceeded to India. His father soon after died; and the regimental agent gave him information of the event, and that he was heir to the rich and noble family of Steinach. Measures were taken to discharge him from the service, in which his adverse fate had doomed him to linger. But whilst cherishing the anxious hope of returning to his native land with dignity and honor, after many years hardships, and of spending the remainder of his chequered life in the enjoyment of a noble independence, he was taken sick, sent to the hospital, and died. The record of this event has recently been transmitted to Germany by the British Governor of Bombay.

The following is a curious Order of the Day issued by Bonaparte, when First Consul, on the occasion of an act of suicide committed by a horse-grenadier—

Extract from the Orderly Book of the Horse grenadiers of the Consular Guard.

Order of the 22d Floreal, (year 10.)

The Grenadier Grobbin, has destroyed himself in consequence of a love affair. He was otherwise a respectable man. This is the second event of the kind which has happened in the corps within a month.

The first Consul has directed that it shall be inserted in the Order of the Day of the Guard, that a Soldier ought to know how to subdue sorrow and the agitation of the passions, that there is as much courage in enduring with firmness the pains of the heart as in remaining steady under the grape-shot of a battery. To abandon one's self to grief without resistance, to kill one's self in order to escape from it, is to fly from the field of battle before one is conquered.

(Signed) BONAPARTE, First Consul.

ALEXANDRIA:
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 28, 1819.

Arguing a few days ago upon the subject of duelling with a tiny young gentleman, he triumphantly exclaimed, what should a person like me do, if insulted by a great huge fellow as strong as three or four of me? I answered him, "why, do nothing" —you are no more disgraced by his insult than by being obliged to take shelter in a neighbor's house from a mob of bravoes.—But suppose your object to be reparation, what assurance have you that he would not be as much an overmatch for you with a pistol, as with fists or cudgels. They are in general the same kind of reprobates, who hector on the strength of brain, bone and a brazen front—who lounge in the passages of our theatres, not to see the play—but to toy with diseased strumpetry, for the ignominious glory of the thing, and render themselves conspicuous blackguards, by bullying, kicking up riots, disturbing the audience and banishing sobriety from the walls of our public amusements—and who practice with pistols incessantly, for the purpose of preventing any man having a fair and equal chance in fighting, and in the most abject spirit of cowardice, acquire and exhibit their superiority in shooting, in order to deter others from fighting them.—Such was a celebrated duellist in the old country, whom out of respect to an exalted house to which he was related, and an illustrious name which he bore, I forbear to designate, and whose malignant passions and turbulent irritability brought him at last to an ignominious death. This vile man constantly boasted, and in two instances he confirmed it by bets laid previous to meeting, that he would forfeit his soul, body and estate, if he did not hit any given part of the human body, to the fourth part of an inch. In addition to this unerring accuracy of aim, it was a custom with him, at the moment of presenting his pistol, to make an immense elonge or outstretch, by which he lowered his height more than fourteen inches, bringing his hand and eye to a direct level with his antagonist's pistol; he by this method, at the same time shielded his head and heart, so that the bullet, if well aimed, must penetrate the thick bony part of the palm of his hand before it could touch the one, and pass through the whole length of his right arm, before it could reach the other. Against a professed duellist, thus prepared, and perpetually practising, what chance would a headstrong, passionate young man, rushing forth flushed from the tavern, the gaming table or the brothel, have in a duel with pistols. The wretch to whom I allude above, was known by many to be at bottom a coward; but instigated by vanity, led a life of danger, turbulence and shame, to get the name of a fighting man. For the security of his person, he had a net work made at Augsburgh, of the minute chains which set watches in motion, which was discovered by some youths of Dublin college poking him ineffectually with swords.

In our country, I am sorry to hear that our little boys are in the habit of early training at the pistol exercise, in order to render themselves accomplished murderers in time. On the whole, if the practice of duelling continues to increase in quantity and malignity it has done for a few years past, every good man will have cause to wish that the government of the United States should adopt and enforce the celebrated declaration of the great king of Prussia on the subject. "I permit my subjects" said Frederick, "to fight; but it is on this express condition, that unless one be killed, I will infallibly hang both the combatants."

But if such be the guilt and irrationality of the principals in duelling, who have at least pretexts, such as they are, to offer in defence of their murderous practices, what must be the moral condition of seconds—of instigators—of connivers, without profit to tempt, or passions to stimulate them?

"Respecting the mystery of seconds," says a celebrated satirical writer, who flourished more than a century ago, "I must allow it to be such a master-piece of baseness and absurdity, that no description can reach it." These understrappers in mischief and destruction, are such kind, implicit souls as are not to be matched upon any other occasion. The most perfect stranger as sure of their beneficent offices, at the very first word of requesting—upon such a trifling obligation as to give a hand to an act of assassination, or to look on as a friend while it is perpetrating, would be so ungenteel, so churlish, so illiberal! So on they go, often with very little acquaintance either with the man or the matter. The honor of the undertaking is fighting, without knowing or caring for what, or for or against whom; and the less they know about the matter, the more honorable the deed. The necessity is irresistable—it is too pious to be evaded, according to their notions—it is to be presumed, that it is not a father who is to be killed—or that out of politeness, they would not ask the man to be present.

I must repeat it, I like the second worse still than the principal—because I abhor a man that can hate at first sight, and murder extempore. In the heartless complaisance of the second, there seems to me something more truly disgraceful, as well as diabolical even than in the fury and turbulent malignity of the principal: something that argues a greater contempt of the human race. To shew all the dire effects of envenomed rage, without the external symptoms of passion, is the most refined philosophy of a butcher—it makes a beast of an enemy, and knocks a fellow creature on the head for some frivolous cause of quarrel, as unfeelingly as if he were an ox.

Although I am willing to grant that (taking ground on the erroneous principle on which this detestable practice is so often justified, namely, the preservation of character from the imputation of cowardice) military men rather less unjustifiable than any others, for the same reason that a merchant is more excusable for revenging by action at law an attack upon his integrity and credit, yet military men themselves can not be held guiltless who practice it. No man in his senses can doubt of the inefficacy of duelling as a constituent in the military character, who considers that in the Prussian army the practice was more than half a century ago put down by Frederick the Great—and that in the British army it has long ceased to exist. Whether either of those is less formidable in the field for it, the military operations in Europe, which closed at Waterloo, will bear everlasting testimony.

I fear that much of the error in circulation respecting this point, is owing to a want of discriminating faculties in the persons concerned. It has, ever since I remember, been remarked, that, abstracted from the folly of the act itself, men who are prone to rioting, bullying, duelling, and exciting public attention to their prowess, are by nature eminently stupid. How exquisitely has Shakespeare, following, as they say, Homer, (in my opinion rather going before him) made the characters in his Troilus and Cresida display the thick skulled valor of Ajax.

"Thou sodden witted lord! thou hast no more brain in thy head than I have in my elbows; an ass may tutor thee: Thou scurvy valiant ass! thou art here put to watch Trojans; and thou art bought and sold among those of wit, like a Barbarian slave."

So says the railing Thersites—But what says the wise Ulyses?—Why this—

"Heavens what a man is here! a very horse,
"That has he knows not what."

And again Thersites—

"Ajax goes up and down the field asking for himself.

Achilles. How so?

Thersites. He must fight singly to-morrow with Hector; and is so propheticaly proud of an heroical cudgelling, that he raves in saying nothing.

Achilles. How can that be?

Thersites. Why, he stalks up and down like a peacock, a stride and a stand: and imitates like an hostess that hath no arithmetic but her brain to set down her reckoning: bites his lip with a politic regard, as who should say—there were wit in this head, an 'twould out: And so there is; but it lies as coldly in him as fire in a flint, which will not show without knocking.

Achilles. Come, thou shalt bear a letter to him straight.

Thersites. Let me bear another to his horse; for that's the more capable creature."

And such as Shakspeare has thus depicted are the greater part of the semi-barbarians who disturb the peace of society and break up families into ruins, only to show that they are not afraid to fight—as if it signified a farthing to the world or themselves whether they are or no.

Extract of a letter to a respectable mercantile house in this town, dated

"London, March 6, 1819.

"As a correspondent of our friends Hunt, Newman & Roope, of Oporto, we think it our duty to inform you of the very great fall that has taken place in the price of grain in many parts of Europe, and that the markets in Portugal are, and will be, completely overstocked for a very long time.

"We have advices from every part of Italy of the very low prices there—and they are actually loading a great number of vessels for Oporto and Lisbon, at such prices as we never remember.

"The price of the best Indian corn at Ancona, by our advices of the 12th and 19th ultimo, is 35 pauls per rubbio, equal to 2s sterling per bushel, and the freight to Portugal at 1 shilling per bushel.

"The low prices have induced many people to adventure very largely, and there will be an immense quantity sent in addition to the very great stock already accumulated in Portugal.

"We, therefore, strongly recommend your not shipping any grain to Portugal during the ensuing summer, for as the Italian corn is much prefered to what is sent from the United States, those who ship from the latter must suffer great loss.

"By our advices from Oporto the nominal price of Indian corn was 450 a 480 rs. per alq. for American, and 500 to 520 rs. for Italian—but they they could not find purchasers, and they were not then aware of the great fall in the price in Italy during the last month, or of freights being so low.

"Wheat has fallen at Antwerp and the neighboring ports to 50f. per quarter, in consequence of the ports of England being shut to importation; and they have no place to send it to with any prospect of profit."

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirious of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or
